Attractive Hair

Always Fascinates—Parisian Sage Makes Hair That is Dark, Faded, or Thin Abundant and Gloriously Radiant.

Every girl and woman, too, wants to be beautiful and attractive—it's her birth-right—but unsightly, or thin and characterless hair destroys half the beauty of the most attractive face.

If your hair is not fascinating, is thinning out, full of dandruff, dry or if the scalp itches and burns, begin at once the use of Parisian Sage. It will double the beauty of the hair, cool and invigorate the scalp and the first application removes the dandruff. It is the hair tonic par excellence, containing the proper elements to supply hair needs and make the hair soft, wavy, lustrous and abundant.

Parisian Sage as sold by Noyes Drug Store in a 50 cent bottle is pleasant and refreshing, delightfully perfumed—neither refrs or sticky.

Judge Enoch Foster.

Judge Enoch Foster died at his home, at Portland, Saturday forenoon, after an illness which began in March.

Only exceptional vitality and the force of a very strong will power prolonged his life during the past three months. He was able to take short walks and to ride in his motor car around the city during the summer, but had been confined to his residence all the fall and to his bed for the last few weeks. His death is attributed mainly to the infirmities of age, a gradual decline rather than as a result of any specific malady.

All Maine knew Judge Foster. From the time he left the bench, he had been almost constantly engaged in great cases.

On or off the bench Judge Foster always was a strong man. His great knowledge of the law made even his breezy utterances from the bench valuable.

He was born in Newry, Oxford County, May 10, 1789, and therefore was in his 74th year. His father, who was a farmer, was the son of Asa Foster, one of the earliest settlers of Newry, who died September 20, 1831, and was a direct descendant of Reginald Foster, a leading man in Colonial times, who came from Branton, England, to Ipswich, Mass., in 1638. The father of Judge Foster was named Enoch, and he was born in Newry, January 1, 1799, and there he died December 26, 1881, at the age of 82.

Young Foster was fitted for College at Gould's Academy, Bethel, and at the Maine State Seminary, Lewiston, entering Bowdoin in 1800.

At the outbreak of the Civil War he enlisted in Co. H, 13th Regiment Maine Volunteers, as second lieutenant and soon was promoted to first lieutenant. Later he was appointed provost marshal by General Banks. In this position he served nearly two years, resigning to take part in the Red River Expedition. After three years' service in the army he was honorably discharged, and returning to Bowdoin was by vote of the faculty permitted to graduate with the class of 1864. Twenty years later his alma mater conferred upon him the degree of A. M.

After studying law with his cousin, Hon. Reuben Foster, at Waterville, he entered the Albany Law School, receiving the degree of LL. B. in 1865, and being admitted to the New York bar the same year.

He opened a law office in Bethel, and in 1867 was elected state senator, and attracted attention by the force and ability of his speeches.

On March 24, 1884, Governor Frederick Robie appointed him one of the associate justices of the Maine Supreme Judicial Court, and he was reappointed by Governor Edwin C. Burleigh in 1891, serving a period of 14 years with marked distinction.

After leaving the bench he resumed the practice of law in Bethel, remaining there until his removal to Portland, where on February 15, 1899, he formed a law partnership with Hon. Oscar H. Hersey, formerly a lawyer with an office at Buckfield, the firm of Foster & Hersey ultimately becoming recognized as one of the leading firms in the State.

Judge Foster had always maintained a deep interest in Grand Army matters, and was past commander of Brown Post, G. A. R. of Bethel and members of several fraternal societies and social organizations.

On June 6, 1864, he married Adeline O., daughter of Ivory Lowe of Waterville, who died June 12, 1872. On June 3, 1873, he married Sarah W., daughter of Robert A. Chapman of Bethel. To them has been born one son, Robert C. Foster, who is associated with his father in the law business under the firm name of Foster & Foster, the firm of Foster & Hersey having been dissolved November 15, 1905.

Judge Foster was always a Republican until a few years ago when he began to vote independently. He was a strong supporter of Theodore Roosevelt for President.

Few professional men have a wider circle of friends and acquaintances. He was one of the best story tellers of this State. He understood the art of eloquence and was one of the most convincing as well as interesting lawyers. He was an after-dinner speaker of rare attainments, with magnetic qualities irrespective of the subject or the occasion.

He was a striking figure with face of large but impressive features, always smooth shaven, with eyes that twinkled with only partially concealed merriment during amusing situations, while these same eyes could snap fire and indicate a spirit of resentment under some circumstances.

Practically every man has a hobby and Judge Foster's was the strong affection he had for his native town of Newry and the town and townspeople of Bethel where he lived many years.

He was a loyal son of old Oxford County. He retained the ancestral farm and to a few of his choicest friends he delighted to talk with the utmost informality of his boyhood days, of his early struggles when laying the foundation for an education of the thousand and one old and humorous experiences that he had while a boy in the country schools.

The scenes of those early days have never lost their charm and he was never happier than when rambling after many years of absence in the familiar spots in picturesque Newry or chatting with old time neighbors in his old home in Bethel. They will miss him there as others will miss him, clad in professional black, long flowing Prince Albert, low cut vest, with wide expanse of white starched shirt front, his head surmounted by a shiny silk tie.

Alo Judice Foster was one of a type of the old school lawyers of Maine who nearly extinct. He fitted for his profession as a student in a lawyer's office as well as being a graduate of a school of law. He practiced for years as a country lawyer. He rounded out his career in the metropolitan practice in the metropolis of Maine. He was a son of Maine, an active figure in the affairs of his native State, a soldier who fought for his country in the day of her greatest need and who was a brilliant member of one of the leading professions of life.

If You are Subject to Colds This Editorial will Interest You.

A Great Majority of People Get One or More Colds Every Season and It is of Vital Interest to All to Learn How to Avoid and Relieve Colds Quickly, Since Colds are Said to be Contagious.

Some people think colds are only caught through exposure. This return is contradicted by the fact that Arctic explorers are peculiarly free from colds. It is more generally accepted that colds are the result of civilized life, due to super-heated rooms and a very rapid change in temperature which causes the nerve centers to be depressed, and still more largely due to contagion—one member of a family imparting a cold to another by sneezing or coughing.

A cold means nothing if relieved quickly. That such a purpose may be accomplished, a quick aid to a cold is an essential. A remedy especially devised to relieve colds quickly is PERUNA.

PERUNA contains such ingredients that have an especially beneficial influence upon the inflamed mucous membranes and the quicker these mucous membranes are given the benefit of a remedy like PERUNA, the quicker the relief and the less contagion.

A neglected cold may become a serious menace to one's own life, and far worse, may endanger one's family.

We insure our homes against fire, our lives against death. Why should we not insure ourselves against colds if possible by having a medicine in the family chest that can be used at once?

PERUNA is a reliable household remedy for colds and should be in every home; for there should be a desire to combat a cold as quickly as possible. This is enlightened hygiene.

People who are feeble and run down are more subject to colds than persons in normal health. Such persons need outdoor life and PERUNA to help build up a strong constitution. If you have a poor appetite that is often a warning that you probably need a tonic like Peruna for Peruna aids the digestive organs. When your appetite is fair and work and exercise do not quickly tire you, your susceptibility to colds diminishes very much.

Persons who object to liquid medicines can now obtain PERUNA TABLETS.

Knox and John Burgess have dug a well.

Discussion of following question: Resolved that Success in Life Depends More on Character than Circumstances. Debate in affirmative opened by Charles McKenney, who made an interesting, well considered argument. He was followed for the negative by Brother Llewellyn Saunders in a vigorous plea for circumstances. Next in affirmative came Mrs. L. R. Muller whose arguments and style of eloquence were sufficient to win the question for her side. Had there been no others. Following her came Mrs. Ida Riggs who advocated the claims of the negative with such a reinforcement of facts and logic that a second round of the disputants still left the question in much doubt. It was then opened to the house, and everyone in the room was invited to speak, and a number of good arguments were made on both sides. The question was then submitted to a ballot on merits of the debate, resulting in 20 for affirmative to 14 in negative. A hand vote on the merits of the question showed 16 for affirmative to one for negative.

Putting Tobacco in Tins is Like "Locking the Stable Door"

"after the horse is gone." Because when tobacco is chopped into small pieces, much of the flavor evaporates before the tobacco goes into the tin.

There is only one way to keep all the natural fragrance and original flavor in tobacco until it reaches your pipe—and that is the hard-pressed Sickle plug. And the natural leaf wrapper is a better protector than any tin, tinfoil or waxed paper.

You always get a fragrant, slow-burning, cool smoke from Sickle, because you slice it off the plug as you use it. You get more tobacco, because there's no package to pay for. There's no tobacco wasted—and the last pipeful is as fresh and sweet as the first. Smoke Sickle today—all good dealers sell it.

Joseph Andrew's Letters.

My second days ride was much like the first, only more so. This section of the state has been owned by another party and I should judge under very poor management. The horses were poor and not well cared for. The owner, who drove the first half of the distance complained to me that his drivers did not feed and water his horses properly. The one team made the entire trip without change and I noticed that when we stopped at the half-way house for dinner and where we meet the other stage, that while he and the other driver went into the house and ate a warm and hearty dinner, the poor horses were tied to posts by the roadside and left without a bite of dinner. The afternoon driver was a bright looking half blood Indian, and he let me know that he took delight in the fact that his father was a white man. His chief amusement all the afternoon seemed to crack the poor old horse on the right ear with his long and heavy whip lash. He said that it was the only way to make him go.

About 5 p. m. we arrived at Happy Camp, all safe and sound, where I was met and warmly greeted by my boyhood playmate of 60 to 65 years ago and with whom I had not met since he started to make his fortune in the Golden State in 1863. He took me to his home two miles up Indian Creek where I had a very pleasant three days visit with the family consisting of his wife and son, Rupert, eighteen years of age.

Their daughter Irene, had been married a few weeks before and was living ten miles up the creek and I did not see her as the only way to get to her home was by horseback or the Foot & Walker line.

Mr. Swan is known here as Charlie, his full name is Joseph Charles Swan. While working in some large camp he said that there were so many Joes that it was confusing and he dropped the first name. ## A Valuable Suggestion

Important to Everyone

It is now conceded by physicians that the kidneys should have more attention as they control the other organs to a remarkable degree and do a tremendous amount of work in removing the poisons and waste matter from the system by filtering the blood.

During the winter months especially, when we live an indoor life, the kidney should receive some assistance when needed, as we take less exercise, drink less water and often eat more rich heavy food, thereby forcing the kidneys to do more work than Nature intended. Evidence of kidney trouble, such as lame back, annoying bladder troubles, smarting or burning, brick-dust or sediment, sallow complexion, rheumatism, may be weak or irregular heart action, warns you that your kidneys require help immediately to avoid more serious trouble.

Many physicians claim that an herbal medicine containing no minerals or opiates has the most healing influence. An ideal herbal compound that has had most remarkable success as a kidney and bladder remedy is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention the Norway Weekly Oxford County Advertiser.

SMALLPOX AND DIPHTHERIA

There is less dread of these diseases now than formerly, because everybody knows they can be prevented, one by vaccination, the other by antitoxin. You can keep from having colds, grippe, bronchitis, pneumonia, catarrh, typhoid fever, rheumatism, and other dangerous cold-weather ailments, if you put your system into a proper healthy condition to resist disease.

Reckall Olive Oil Emulsion helps the body produce substances which prevent the growth of disease germs in the blood, thus putting the system into a healthy condition to resist disease. It will help you get well and strong if you have any of the above diseases, or other diseases. It is very good for children just at this season of the year—to make them healthy and strong—to successfully resist cold weather ailments.

There's direct benefit to you in every ingredient in Reckall Olive Oil Emulsion. The four Hypophosphites it contains are used by leading physicians everywhere in debility, weakness and liability to disease, to strengthen the nerves. Purest Olive Oil, one of the most nutritious, most-easily-digested foods known, being taken with the hypophosphites, gives rich tissue nourishment through the blood to the entire system.

You who are weak run-down, and you who are apparently well now, but are liable to suffer from various cold weather ailments, use Reckall Olive Oil Emulsion to get and keep well and strong. For the tired-out, run-down, nervous, emaciated, or debilitated, the convalescing, growing children—aged people—it is a sensible aid to renewed strength, better spirits, glowing health.

Reckall Olive Oil Emulsion—king of the celebrated Reckall Remedies—is for freedom from sickness of you and your family. Pleasant-tasting, containing no alcohol or dangerous drugs, you'll be as enthusiastic about it as we are when you have noted its strengthening, invigorating, building-up, disease-preventing effects. If it does not cure you, your money will be given back to you without argument. Sold in this community only at our store—The Reckall Store—one of more than 7,000 leading drug stores in the United States, Canada and Great Britain. F. P. Stone, 143 Main Street, Norway, Me.

silvery gray and bang well down on his shoulders and reminded me very much of the picture of the late Walt Whitman, California's favorite poet. As mine is a vast experience and has had quite a varied experience and some very narrow escapes from death or serious accidents. At one time he was digging under a high bank, glancing his eyes upward he saw the earth moving and ran for his life. Two seconds later he would have been buried under many feet of earth. He had lived in Washington and Oregon, about thirty years ago I think he told me he came to Happy Camp and filed on a homestead of 160 acres of heavy timber land. On the narrow bottom he had a terrible accident about twenty acres of land, on a part of which he raises alfalfa, corn and garden truck, the balance being in pasture. He has a span of horses, keeps a few cows and sheep and a large flock of hens.

On one side of his farm is Indian Creek, running through his farm. On the other side is a small creek, across this he has built a dam from which he has an irrigation ditch from which he gets plenty of water to irrigate his little farm. He has an immense amount of heavy fir timber upon his land, but it is of no value unless a railroad comes of which there is much talk. If it comes it will through go his land and he would hold the key to the situation and his farm would become valuable.

Mrs. Swan is a fine looking, well educated, christian woman, although enjoying good health, she feels very much like a shut-in and well she may as far as social privileges go. On each side of the little valley a mountain range shuts out the morning and the evening sunshine, while beyond for countless miles there is naught to be seen but vast forests and mountain ranges, the home of the deer, wolf and panther. Her nearest neighbors are two and one half miles away and all but two or three of them are half breed Indians. Fifty miles to the nearest doctor and no preaching service except once or twice a year when some traveling preacher, not for financial gain, but for his Master's sake, comes to tell the gospel story to the rough but kind-hearted miners.

At the time of the Whitman massacre in Oregon, Mrs. Swan's mother, then years old, was captured and held a captive for some time.

Happy Camp is the business center of a large scope of territory. It consists of a post-office, three stores, a hotel, schoolhouse, blacksmith shop and perhaps a dozen dwelling houses, mostly occupied by half breed Indians. It is a mining town, outside of freighting its main business is with the miners. It is on the Kalamah river and Indian Creek joins the river here making quite a wide bottom, on which there are several small ranches, the principal crop being alfalfa raised both for hay and pasture.

I can best explain the nature of the Kalamah River by quoting the first and last verses of a thirteen verse poem by Geo. K. Camp, entitled The Song of the Kalamah—"A merry and maddening stream, That dashes and glooms and glides O'er dead men's bones and golden stones, And the wreck of a thousand boats, O'er the strangled tones and muffled moans Of a throng of multitudes. Be it so, but it is, as the years glide by, I shall gather my ghostly toll, For I hate the face of the human race, And the story of the soul." A man had been drowned on the river a few days before by the upsetting of his boat and his body had not been found.

Just below Happy Camp is a large Hydroelectric plant which Mr. Swan took me to see. In Southern California, they develop water for irrigation and electric power. Here it is developed mostly for hydroelectric power to mining. A dam mostly made of plank is started far up the river into which the water flows and is brought down stream. At this mine I think they told me it had a fall of 160 feet. Under this heavy pressure the water is carried in large steel pipes to within forty to sixty feet of the bank of earth which here was forty to fifty feet high and from a large ten foot iron pipe hung on a pivot and with an eight or ten inch nozzle which reminded me of a common very much the stream of water was directed on the bank, and under its tremendous power the dirt melted away like a tub of snow when you pour boiling water upon it. There were two streams playing upon this bank from different angles and a large stream of muddy water was continually running down the long sluice way into the river.

This sluice had stripes or slats fastened across it and the fine particles of gold settled to the bottom. About once in two weeks they have a clean up and the gold is taken out. This mine is run night and day and two men are kept continually at the nozzles to direct them. The gold is all found on the bed rock and all the dirt above has to be washed away before the precious gold is found. A rich man living in California owns and operates this mine.

Years ago Mr. Swan found gold upon his land in a little stream near his house and took out a thousand dollars worth of dust with a common gold pan, then the pay street played out. They say that there is a little gold all along the bed rock but not in paying quantities. He took his pan and went with me to the creek and washed out several pans of dirt to show me how it was done and in most every pan there would be a few grains of gold.

As It Is Today.

Do you know the Youth's Companion as it is today—enlarged, improved, broadened in its reach of human interest? You may remember it as it was. You ought to know it as it is now. You will be surprised at what a year's reading of the Companion will do for your family. No American monthly magazine offers such a quantity, and it comes weekly too.

Father can find no better editorial page, published. With its impartial comment, its Nature and Science, it will keep a busy man well informed. The Family Page, The Boys' Page, the Girls' Page, and the Children's Page, in addition to eight serial stories and 250 other stories for all the family, suggest the lavish promise for a year's reading, and every line is published with a purpose. No other american periodical covers the same field of interest or offers such a quantity of reading at as low cost. No other publication furnishes more inspiration or entertainment, or enjoys greater success.

If you are not familiar with The Companion as it is today, let us send you the announcement for 1914, with sample copies containing the opening chapters of A. S. Pier's great boarding-school story, "His Father's Son." New subscribers who send $2.00 will receive the remaining issues of 1913, and a copy of The Companion Practical Home Calendar in addition.
